DEVASTATED FRANCE IS SHOWING SIGNS OF LIFE

PARIS, July 15, (Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Lens, the most thoroughly devastated town of the war, is showing signs of revival. When the Associated Press correspondent visited this eristwhile busy coal mining center of the department of the Pas de Calais sarly this year, it still looked as though a set fogiant sledgehammers had pounded the whole place to atoms. To the west of it lies the grim battlefield of Loois, which has the curious appearance of a petrified sea. The soil has been plowed up in an extraordinary manner by thousands of poissnous gas bombs, which have tinged the sparse vegetation an unhealthy gray.

Before the war, Lens had 30,000 inhabitants. When the correspondent visited the locality in its state of hopeless desolation, there were only three tsury optimists left, who led a cave man's existence among the ruins. Their nearest point to get food was Bully-Grenay, ten miles away, and there was no transportation.

Things have been mending since. Today, about 3,000 of the exiled inhabitants have returned. They are housed in corrugated iron huntments formerly used by the British army. The cleaning up of the place, begun by Chinese and German prisoners work squads, is taking on more speed. The approaches have been laid bare to cellars and underground shelters which have been occupied by homeless "househunters."

INTERNATIONAL FLYING he Associated Press.)-Elaborate plans have been laid bare to collars and underground shelters which have been ocupied by homeless "househunters." Even building of a sort is going on, the material used being such odd bits of wood, stone and iron as were still serviceable in the huge rubbish heap that once was Lens.

In the Pas de Calais department alone, 156 townships and villages are in the same plight as Lens, or nearly so. The task of making there places fit to live in again is a herculean one. for international air services are now ernment and it is probable that some of them will be inaugurated soon after the peace conference has finished work and promulgated its decisions for the will establish air routes which will be entirely within her own boundaries and a great problem. The largest suggestion is to use covered army motor trucks as temporary shelters for the workers by whose efforts Lens is to arise from its

out of Paris, one there is at the moment for military business only but plans have been laid for a service that will benefit the general public! So far there is no intention to make this a passenger service but the feasibility is being discussed of sending telegrams and special delivery letters between the two capitals by air. It takes only about three hours for the trip so that a telegram could be delivered quicker in this manner than by wire. It is probable that a charge of perhaps three francs would be made for the carrying of letters. The line between Paris and Brussels is for passencers and an airplane is making one trip a week each way. The fare is about three hundred francs. This service is a private enterprise run by one of the big airplane firms, although it is government controled.

Two other firms are about to start similar services with the permission of the government. In view of this it is probable that no regular government service will be established, although of course, military airplanes are carrying aunoiles and dispatches to the front LONDON, July 15. (Correspondence of the Associated Frees).—The last of the billion dollars' worth of stores purchased by the American army in England will have been disposed of on Aug. 1, in the optuion of Maj.-Gen, J. C. Biddle. The American army headquarters were closed June 15 and a small contingent of the quartermaster's department remained to co-operate with the liquidation commission in adjusting a few remaining contracts and selling supplies.

ther relaxed if not entirely removed. At present the importation of motor vehicles and parts thereof is limited to 50 per cent of the 1913 imports up to Sept 1, 1919, in proportionate monthly quantities.

Sir Aukland Geddes, president of the board of trade, informed the automobile importers that no increase in imports rould be allowed at present owing to the necessity of guarding the future of sterling exchange on America. Sir Aukland said that the board of trade could not consider any one trade or industry by itself, but must look at everything with a view to the best interests of the nation. From this point of view the matter of maintaining Great Britain's financial position and therefore the position of her exchanges was the essential consideration.

LONDON, July 15,-The committee on trusts, appointed by the British min ster of reconstruction has now po in view of the probable growth of trade organizations and combinations.

The American chamber of commerce in London understands that the comin London understands that the com-mittee's recommendations are of a mod-erate character, being chiefly that the board of trade should establish tribunals for investigating the operations of monopolies, combines and trusts, recom-mendations then to be made to the gov-erament for action to remedy any abuse.

the position of her exchanges was the essential consideration.

The American chamber of commerce here amounces, however, that the government has promised to review the entire import and export position on Sept. 1, and that the board of trade should establish a trust and combinations department to draw up a program to protect the community against the evils of monopolies and to secure for the public a larger share of importers not represented in 1914, but who have since established sizable from the better organization of industry.

POISON IN THE BLOOD

Your Friends Know It and Internal Troubles Warn You.

When you see a person whose face is constantly disfigured with blotches, pimples and other skin cruptions it is a sure sign that impurities have found their way into his or her blood. Intelligent people know that these blemishes cannot be permanently cradicated by the application of lotions and cosmetics. They look into the cause of the trouble and invariably find that the blood has become poissoned. Further investigation is likely to show that the person is troubled with indigestion and constipation, both of which are due to sour, fermented, undigested food remaining in the stomach and bowels. Acids and poissons then begin to generate and soon find their way into the blood. Failing to throw off their poisons in the natural way, the only other channel is through the pores, which accounts for so many embarrassing and disfiguring skin cruptions.
